AR399A/TH399C ART AND THEATRE IN LONDON

Travel Dates: May 18 – May 29

Instructors: Marguerite Perret, Ph: (785) 670-2203, marguerite.perret@washburn.edu;

Paul Prece, Ph: (785) 670-2245, paul.prece@washburn.edu

An interdisciplinary exploration of the intersection of the visual and theatrical arts within an international context. The theatre has always relied on artists for set design and costuming, and the visual arts have always helped to “set the scene” in public buildings, churches and through theatrical themes in painting and sculpture. This course explores the intersection of art and theatre in London including the art of theater (behind the scenes), theatrical productions, the theatrical impulse in visual art, and performance art and video. Students will engage in daily discussions, a series of essay assignments, photomontage and drawing assignments in the exploration of the intersection of the visual arts and theatre. Students will experience a variety of theatrical productions and see visual arts displays in both contemporary and historical contexts. Each visit will involve behind the scenes interpretation in the form of conversations with curators and theatre professionals, and analysis and integration of the content through student essays, drawing and photography assignments, and structured discussions.

CN363A INTERCULTURAL COMMUNICATION

Travel Dates: May 20 – June 1

Instructor: Tracy Routsong, Ph: (785) 670-2233, tracy.routsong@washburn.edu

EXPERIENCE CHINA! Through the urban streets of Beijing, Xi'an, and Tianjin to a rural village beyond the city borders, students will learn about intercultural communication and the impact it has upon our interactions. Before and after the trip we will meet as a class as we prepare and reflect upon our discoveries, both of Chinese co-cultures and our own.

HI3001/PE315X SPORT AND CULTURAL HISTORY OF EUROPE

Travel Dates: May 18 – May 27

Instructors: Ross Friesen, Ph: (785) 670-2203, ross.friesen@washburn.edu;

Alan Bearman, Ph: (785) 670-2245, alan.bearman@washburn.edu

Join us for a 10 day travel experience to understand the impact of sport upon modern Europe. To many modern American students, professional and, increasingly, collegiate sports are a corporate event with little connection to modern-life. Modern European nations typically have a more complicated relationship with their sporting culture. To fully appreciate the impact of sporting traditions upon European culture (particularly working class culture) and history, this course will take us into the field to study the people, geography, stadiums, culture and hopes that are sports in England and France. This course will also invite students to explore London's plans to use the 2012 Olympics to transform the long-neglected and economically deprived region of the East End.
