MAGAZINE

March 7, 1932.

Dear Mrs. Draper :

We always read a manuscript of yours with anticipation. We have come so near to taking several of your things that we always hope we shall find something just right for us.

In " Children of Liz " you have a good idea, but it seems to me that you have carried the inarticulate-ness of the men to an extreme, and that in an effort to use a new technique the story has become obscure.

I am sorry to have to return it, and hope you will let us see more of your work. I think the open road and America's itinerant population offer possibilities.

Sincerely yours,

Alfred Dashiell
