

NEWSLETTER

Summer and Fall 2025 was a period of celebration and transition for Washburn's Sociology & Anthropology Department! To prepare for the exciting remodel of Advisors Excel Hall, we have moved to West Hall 100 and are settled into our new offices and laboratory spaces (see page 2). Some familiar faces are missing this semester as Drs. Ibañez and Miller are on academic sabbatical this year (also page 2). As always, the department students and faculty have been busy in the classroom (see pg3), the community (pages 5-6), and abroad (page 4)!

Congratulations to our Fall
Graduates!

BA Sociology, History Minor

Construction is officially underway at the new Advisors Excel Hall (formerly Henderson). The SOAN Department moved to our temporary new home in West Hall 100.

All SOAN Department Faculty were named WU Retention All-Stars!

Faculty are recognized for their efforts to connect with students, promote their success, and went above and beyond to help retain WU students.

Stay tuned for more updates on their exciting work!

Dr. Jason Miller is on sabbatical this semester for his research using applied ethnographic research to plan for Place-Based Community Engagement. Dr. Miller is working with campus and community stakeholders to identify sustained and reciprocal partnerships!

Dr. Lindsey Ibañez is on sabbatical this semester working on her research project, with a collaborator at The Ohio State University, learning to use NotebookLM (Google's Artificial Intelligence) for qualitative analyses in Sociology!

Alumni Update: First day of 19th grade picture! Brailey Moeder ('22 BS Anthropology, Forensic Concentration) started her Doctorate in Anthropology at the University of Nevada, Reno this Fall. From Ichabod, to Laker, to now Wolf Pack!

Students learn human osteology with Dr. Sundal in AN116 Biological Anthropology

Students present research in Dr. Murphy's AN370/KS399 Historical Archaeology class

SOAN BODS IN & OUT OF THE CLASSROOM

Dr. Murphy's AN 370/KS399 Historical Archaeology class visited the NOTO Arts & Entertainment District's Arts Center to interact with the "Camp To-Sha-Ka" exhibit, which confronts how Native American imagery, mascots, and stereotypes have been used and are continued to be used in our culture (left image). Students also toured the Brown v. Board of Education National Historical Park (right image).

Dr. Maxwell's AN112 Introduction to Cultural Anthropology classes visited the Mulvane Art Museum's DoPiKa: Reinstatement exhibit, which features contemporary art and historical research highlighting the many ways Native Americans are connected to Kansas (right image and image page 1). Students engaged in important dialogue regarding the reinstatement of identity and the history of forced assimilation. Dr. Murphy's AN370/KS399 Historic Archaeology class also visited the exhibit.

Students in Dr. Park's Korea Study Abroad visited many places, such as the World Cup Park, and Digital Media City. They also climbed the Nam-Tower, and toured markets and medical schools! Some students even enjoyed yoga and a live music concert at Gangnam! Dr. Sundal was faculty co-lead on the program.

Summer Abroad in Korea & at Home in KS with the Archaeological Field School

Dr. Murphy led the 50th annual Kansas Archeology Training Program field school in conjunction with the Kansas Historical Society and Kansas Anthropological Association. This year's field school was near Lecompton at the remnants of a 167-year-old mansion constructed in 1858 for Frederick Stanton, the former acting governor of Kansas territory. Participants contributed over 4,000 hours in the field and laboratory, answering questions about the history of the property. Students presented their work to nearly 100 people at the Washburn Archaeological Field School Open House!
